

AUSTIN PATEREK

E austinpaterek@gmail.com
M 803 553 4170
W austinpaterek.com
L linkedin.com/in/austinpaterek

Creative Strategist // Creative Producer // Experience & Franchise Development

Dear New York Mets Brand Strategy Team,

My name is Austin Paterek. I am a television producer based in Los Angeles and a co-creator of a new series format titled Off The Plate. The series follows actor and host Andrew J. West as he pursues a lifelong goal of visiting every Major League Baseball stadium, exploring each park's connection to the culture and people of its host city through the lens of food. Over the past year, Andrew, Emmy-winning director and co-creator Carlo Alberto Orecchia, and I have assembled a producing team that includes actor-producers Damon Wayans Jr. and Amber Stevens West. We are ready to bring Off The Plate to screens worldwide and to showcase the food and culture of MLB, and we would welcome the chance to discuss it with the Mets.

Citi Field is one of the great parks in Major League Baseball, with an exceptional food program and a deep connection to the community around it. That combination puts it near the top of our list for season one. Off The Plate is about the way Major League teams and stadiums serve as cultural touchstones and gathering places for the cities they call home. Citi Field and Queens, the World's Borough, offer exactly the culinary and cultural landscape the series was built to explore.

We would love to meet with you and others in the Mets organization to share more about the series and about filming at Citi Field. I have attached a one-sheet with additional detail on the format and the creative team. I will follow up next week, and I am happy to work around your schedule in the meantime.

Best regards,
Austin Paterek